Wednesday, November 14, 2007 - Bright Star Couriers, a division of Alliance Building Services, opened a messenger center at 90 Broad St., the company's 20th overall. The building at 90 Broad St. in the Financial District is owned by Swig Equities. Gary Green, CEO of Alliance Building Services said, "In addition to streamlining the package delivery process, messenger centers play a critical role in building security by limiting access to a property."

All deliveries will enter and exit the building via Bright Star's messenger center. Incoming parcels will be signed for by the messenger center staff and brought directly to the tenant by a Bright Star Couriers employee, thereby cutting off building access to street messengers. To send a package from the building, tenants will call the messenger center, which will dispatch a Bright Star Couriers staffer to retrieve the package.
